God is supreme in everything: supreme in power, supreme in knowledge, supreme in love. So is He supreme in riches—or supreme in poverty—or both? Both, I think. And that is the mystery of the Trinity.

God the Father has everything—He is supremely rich—and He gives everything away to His Son, as Jesus says in today's Gospel: "Everything the Father has is mine." And the Son, having received everything from the Father, gives it all away to the Holy Spirit: "The Spirit of truth ... will lead you into the complete truth ... all he tells you will be taken from what is mine." What it is to be the Trinitarian God, is to have everything, and to give it all away in love—absolute riches and perfect poverty.

And we are caught up in this mystery. The Father gives us everything: "God so loved the world that he gave his only Son." (John 3:16) So does the Son: "I call you friends because I have made known to you everything I have learned from my Father." (John 15:15) And so does the Holy Spirit: "He will lead you into the complete truth." And we are called to give everything back to the God, which is the deepest meaning of worship, and makes us most fully like the God we love. The same dynamic of total self-giving and receiving is found in the mystery of the Cross and Resurrection of Jesus, and, of course, in the Eucharist—for the Eucharist is both the supreme self-giving of Jesus and our supreme act of worship.

God bless, Fr Stephen
